Canned Corn.

Some canned corn is dry, tasteless stuff without a particle of sweetness about it. Hunt has a corn that he can sell you for 12c that is the sweetest, tenderest corn that was ever offered for that price. Don't pay 15c for something that is not any better but try this corn at 12c.

University City.

It is impossible to describe Ann Arbor in all its beauty in a short letter, but we will attempt to give an idea of the points of interest to visitors.

In order to make it more vivid to you, let us stroll through the campus, noting some of the interesting features. The first building that we would mention is the large structure devoted to the literary department, containing the immense University Hall, where the entertainments are held.

On the left is the law building, on the right the museum, containing among other complete collections the Chinese exhibit that was at the New Orleans exposition, secured by President Angell. Passing from these buildings we enter the library which contains about 60,000 volumes, besides pamphlets. Up stairs the art gallery, containing the Rogers collection with other pieces of statuary, but that which excites the curiosity of the novice is the whispering gallery. By going in from opposite sides, although separated by about 70 feet, the faintest whisper can be heard as distinctly as though side by side.

The next three buildings we pass through are the chemical, electrical and mechanical laboratories, where the students are found busily engaged in scientific investigations. In this vicinity is the dental college, where the future dentist is perfected in the art of repairing the masterpieces. This and the medical building, together with the two hospitals are some of the less imposing, although a very extensive hospital is in process of construction near the observatory.

On the unoccupied corner of the campus is the athletic field, where many a body contended "rush" and other trials of skill take place, where the young men gain glory and black eyes. It is quite probable that the gymnasium(?) will be located on the campus. Through the agitation that was instigated by the munificence of Mr. Waterman, of Detroit and the generous subscriptions of the students and alumni, the gymnasium will doubtless be a reality.

The enrollment this year in all departments is 2,400.

After having thus incidentally mentioned the buildings, perhaps a few words in regard to student life would not be out of place. The average breakfast hour is seven o'clock. Recitations commence in the morning at a quarter after eight, lasting until half past twelve, with chapel from a quarter after nine until half past, conducted usually by President Angell. The afternoon session is from two until six o'clock. The student will average three or four recitations each day, an hour long. The usual study hours are from eight until ten o'clock, but many times they reach into the small hours of morning.

Many sources of amusement are offered. The Students Lecture Association, Choral Union and Oratorical Association play important parts. The several churches make it very pleasant for the students. The Ladies' Leagues are a great source of pleasure to the co-eds, as many of the wives of members of the faculty receive the young ladies at their homes on appointed days. Many pleasant acquaintances are formed, which make lasting impressions. One forms a better idea of life and its possibilities. Ann Arbor is a sure remedy for one who has an exalted opinion of personal ability, as we meet with those who know better how to use their advantages.

Everyone enjoys the freedom given them at the University, and it certainly gives a person an opportunity to do the best they can. The tendency is to become more interested in the world in general, for many have the idea that no other state or country but their own, is of importance. The student can satisfy all desires for knowledge at the library. The student body consists of representatives from all parts of the United States and Canada, together with a number from the old world.

Ann Arbor is a very beautiful city, prettily located and containing many handsome residences, many of which are fraternity houses.

Owosso "the bright spot" has ten strong independent at the University and is represented in many important offices, and it is an agreeable surprise to learn how much is known of your city. The Owosso students are all in the literary department and represent all but the junior class. The senior class has for its treasurer an Owossoan. Nearly all the publications have editors from Owosso, two being on the inside board, one on the Castilian and two on the U. of M. daily. The Athletic Association has two office holders from Owosso, secretary and member of board of directors. All those who have graduated from the U. of M. from Owosso are a credit to the city, and it is to be hoped that those who are in this wonderful college will be deserving of praise also.

The buildings are not the University, they only stand for the tender recollections, suggest the hours of toil and satisfaction that have been spent in them. Student life is not an ideal existence, it consists in perpetual efforts to make the best of the knowledge gained. It prepares one for the battles of life, one cannot help but learn something beneficial.

Why can't the Owosso U. of M. Alumni do something to help on the "Gymnasium?" Yours truly, "MARIE CAMP."

Fresh vegetables at Hall Bros' for Saturday.

The Morning Star Association No. 945 Patrons of Industry, of Caledonia, passed the following resolution at their meeting Wednesday evening of this week:

Resolved That we approve of the course of our state senator, Marcus Wilcox, and will stand by him to the end in his fair and honest doing, and that a copy of this be forwarded him by the secretary.

There have been laudible efforts lately to elect a national flower by voting; but however dear, and rightfully dear, to the American heart is universal suffrage it cannot decide this question, the answer to which should be by acclamation. And how could a fair vote be obtained without an organization almost such as is found necessary for choosing a president for the great Republic, which in this case is clearly impossible.

Of all the plants selected by this republican caucus, the one that is already national has been strangely neglected. The stately sun-flower, the fragrant arbutus, the gay golden-rod, the beautiful mountain laurel, the grand magnolia, the gorgeous cardinal flower, have each and all had their adherents, and been voted for; but when a few out of what should have been many millions of votes have been recorded, the thing comes to a dead stop.

The American Gardener may speak of our "national flower, the golden-rod;" but when nothing has been the choice of the whole people or a representative part of the people nothing can come of it. But the maize or Indian Corn has a strong, though unacknowledged position as our national plant. From Indian Corn as our National Plant, by Sarah Freeman Clark in New England Magazine for March.

SUNFLOWER CONCERT APRIL FIRST.—A great musical event. Full blown Sunflowers will chant wild, weird, sweet music to the tuneless accompaniment of violins, harps and horns. The music of the tuneless spheres outdone. The "Only Duff" in charge. Hal Ha!
